J. P. GALLAGHER.—Representative from Iowa county, was born on a prairie farm near Williamsburg, and his home has always been near the place of his nativity. For thirty years he has edited the Williamsburg Journal-Tribune. He served in the fortieth general assembly and in the extra session devoted to the revision of the code. He is a product of the country school, a progressive democrat in politics, and is a member of the Catholic church.

JOHN P. GALLAGHER—Representative from Iowa county, was born in that county, of Irish parentage, quite a while ago, and resides on a farm a short distance from the place of his birth. He never attended anything but the public schools, and not very much of that. For several years he was editor of The Journal-Tribune of Williamsburg, but later moved back to the farm. He was elected to the fortieth general assembly in 1922. He is a member of the Catholic church and a third degree member of the Knights of Columbus. He is not married.
